Why in News?

A wave of protests in New Delhi, including demonstrations against the Chief Election Commissioner (CEC) , led to large-scale detentions of youth, journalists, and activists. The situation escalated when the Delhi Police invoked Section 163 of the Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita (BNSS), 2023, to ban unauthorised assemblies and utilized Sections 170 and 172 of the BNSS for pre-emptive detentions.

- The crackdown drew severe criticism, with the United Nations expressing concern over "mass detentions" and legal experts questioning the procedural grounds.
- Intervening in the matter, the Supreme Court ordered a halt to arbitrary detentions and scrutinised the routine use of prohibitory orders, bringing the constitutional balance between Public Order and the Right to Protest into sharp focus.

Summary

- Section 163 BNSS empowers authorities to restrict assemblies to maintain public order, but its use must remain proportionate and evidence-based to protect the Right to Protest under Article 19 .
- Preventive detention , while constitutionally permitted under Article 22 , must be subject to strict safeguards to protect personal liberty under Article 21 and prevent arbitrary State action.

What is Public Order?

- About: In Ram Manohar Lohia v. State of Bihar (1966) , the Supreme Court explained the difference between Law and Order , Public Order , and Security of the State using three concentric circles :
  - Law and Order (Largest Circle): Affects specific individuals (e.g., a minor scuffle or theft).
  - Public Order (Middle Circle): Affects the even tempo of life of the community at large in a specific locality (e.g., violent riots, communal clashes). Every breach of peace is not a threat to public order.
  - Security of the State (Smallest Circle): Threatens the very existence of the nation (e.g., rebellion, waging war).
- Responsibility of Public Order (Seventh Schedule of the Constitution):
  - State List (List II): Entry 1 (Public Order) and Entry 2 (Police) are exclusively under the jurisdiction of State Governments.
  - Exception for Delhi (NCT): Under Article 239AA (inserted by the 69th Constitutional Amendment Act, 1991), while Delhi has an elected legislative assembly, Public Order, Police, and Land are excluded from its purview and remain directly under the Union Government (Ministry of Home Affairs).
  - Concurrent List (List III): Entry 1 (Criminal Law) and Entry 2 (Criminal Procedure under which the BNSS, 2023 is enacted) fall under the Concurrent List.
  - Preventive Detention Jurisdiction: Divided between the Centre and States. Union List (Entry 9) empowers Parliament to enact preventive detention laws for Defence, Foreign Affairs, and Security of India.
    - Concurrent List empowers both Parliament and State Legislatures to enact preventive detention laws for reasons connected with the Security of a State, Maintenance of Public Order, or Maintenance of Essential Supplies and Services.

Section 163 of the BNSS, 2023

- About: Section 163 of the BNSS, 2023 replaces the erstwhile Section 144 of the Code of Criminal Procedure (CrPC), 1973 . It empowers Executive Magistrates (such as the District Magistrate or Sub-Divisional Magistrate) to issue written orders to prevent urgent threats to public order and safety.
  - Prohibitory orders under Section 163 routinely ban the gathering of five or more persons. This threshold is borrowed from Section 189(1) of the Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita (BNS), 2023 (formerly Section 141 IPC), which defines an assembly of five or more persons with an unlawful common object as an "Unlawful Assembly."
- Grounds for Invocation: It is invoked to prevent riots, violent protests, danger to human life, or disturbances to public peace and tranquillity.
- Duration: The order ordinarily expires after two months (60 days) but can be extended by the State Government for a maximum period of six months.
- Concerns Over Misuse: Analysts have pointed out that while this is an emergency power, it is frequently used for routine administrative tasks.
  - Analysis in Delhi recently showed that merely 1.5% of such orders were actually used for preventing unlawful assemblies, while others were used for micro-management.

What is Detention?

- About: Detention is the state-ordered deprivation of personal liberty and freedom of movement without an immediate formal criminal charge.
  - Unlike an arrest (which secures an accused person after an alleged crime) detention is primarily an administrative, precautionary measure designed to maintain public order and state security.
- Types of Detention:
  - Punitive Detention: Deprivation of liberty as punishment following a formal trial and judicial conviction for an offense.
  - Preventive Detention: Precautionary custody without a trial or conviction to stop an individual from committing acts prejudicial to public order or national security.
- Constitutional Provisions: The Constitution permits preventive detention under Article 22 to balance national security and public order.
  - However, the use of preventive detention remains a matter of debate as it directly impacts the Right to Personal Liberty under Article 21 of the Constitution .
- Legal Provisions: Unlike an arrest, detention is not explicitly defined under the Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita (BNSS), 2023 nor does it feature in the substantive Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita (BNS), 2023.
  - Instead, Chapter XII of the BNSS grants police broad preventive powers to temporarily restrain, remove, or hold individuals even before a crime occurs.
  - Specifically, Section 170 of the BNSS, 2023 empowers police to pre-emptively arrest any person without a warrant or magisterial order if they know of a design to commit a cognizable offence that cannot otherwise be prevented (for up to 24 hours).

- Further, the Section 172 of the BNSS, 2023 authorises police to "detain or remove" anyone resisting, refusing, ignoring, or disregarding lawful directions issued to prevent an offence, allowing officers to either produce them before a Magistrate or, in petty cases, release them within 24 hours without registering a formal arrest.

- Key Laws Governing Detention in India:
  - National Security Act (NSA), 1980: Permits administrative detention up to 12 months without formal charges for threats to defense or public order.
  - Unlawful Activities (Prevention) Act (UAPA), 1967: India's primary anti-terror statute, authorizing extended pre-charge detention up to 180 days.
  - Public Safety Act (PSA), 1978: State-level preventive detention statute (Jammu & Kashmir) allowing custody up to two years without trial.
  - COFEPOSA, 1974: Targets economic offenses, authorizing preventive custody to curb smuggling and foreign exchange violations.

Safeguards Against Arbitrary Arrest & Preventive Detention

- A.K. Gopalan v. State of Madras (1950): Upheld preventive detention, ruling that Article 22 provides a complete, independent procedural code.
- Maneka Gandhi v. Union of India (1978): Overturned the A.K. Gopalan (1950) and ruled that any law depriving personal liberty (including preventive detention) must pass the triad test of Articles 14, 19, and 21 (must be just, fair, and reasonable).
- Rekha v. State of Tamil Nadu (2011): Held that preventive detention is an exceptional, draconian power and cannot be used as a substitute for ordinary criminal law when regular bail and trial procedures can handle the situation.
- Pramod Singla v. Union of India (2023): Termed preventive detention a "colonial legacy" conferring extraordinary unchecked power on the Executive. Ruled that a mere "law and order" problem cannot be elevated into a "public order" threat to justify preventive detention, and any procedural lapse renders the detention unconstitutional.

Detention vs. Arrest

Feature	Detention	Punitive Arrest
Primary Objective	Precautionary: Prevents future offenses or public disorder.	Punitive/Investigative: Holds an accused for a past alleged crime.
Legal Trigger	Executive suspicion or intelligence reports.	Registration of a First Information Report (FIR) or credible criminal complaint of a Cognizable Offence. Under Section 35(3) of the Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita (BNSS), issuing a notice of appearance is the mandatory default rule for offenses carrying up to 7 years of imprisonment, and police cannot make routine or casual arrests.
Formal Charge	None; no formal charge sheet at the outset.	Accused of a specific offense under penal law (e.g., BNS).
Right to Counsel	Excluded under Article 22(3); restricted to Advisory Board representation.	Guaranteed under Article 22(1) and Section 35 of the BNSS.
Magisterial Review	Reviewed by an administrative Advisory Board (not within 24 hours).	Mandatory production before a Magistrate within 24 hours (Article 22(2)).

What is the Supreme Court's Stand on the Right to Protest and Preventive Detention?

The Supreme Court has consistently held that the Right to Protest forms the bedrock of a democratic republic under Article 19(1)(a) (freedom of speech) and Article 19(1)(b) (peaceful assembly without arms), subject only to reasonable restrictions under Articles 19(2) and 19(3):

- Anticipatory Action Subject to Safeguards: In Babulal Parate v. State of Maharashtra, 1961 , a five-judge Constitution Bench upheld the constitutional validity of anticipatory prohibitory orders as a valid "reasonable restriction" to maintain public order, while ruling that this power is not absolute.
  - However, it held that the Magistrate cannot act arbitrarily, must record material facts in writing demonstrating an immediate need for prevention, and the order remains subject to judicial review.
- Conditioned Upon Urgency: In Madhu Limaye v. Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Monghyr, 1970 , the Court clarified that the power to issue prohibitory orders is strictly conditioned upon urgency and the existence of an emergency.

- It cannot be deployed as an ordinary administrative tool when normal penal laws suffice.

- Requirement of Genuine Threat: In Re: Ramlila Maidan Incident, 2012 , the Court held that prohibitory emergency powers cannot be exercised on mere conjecture or routine administrative convenience to forcefully evict peaceful crowds.
  - The threat to public peace must be real, proximate, and imminent, and crowd dispersal must strictly adhere to the doctrine of "irreducible minimum force."
- No Blanket Prohibitions: In Mazdoor Kisan Shakti Sangathan v. Union of India, 2018 , the Court invalidated perpetual, blanket bans on protests in central Delhi (such as Jantar Mantar and Boat Club).
  - It established that the administration must balance public order with citizens' right to assemble via clear, regulated guidelines at designated sites.
- The Doctrine of Proportionality: In Anuradha Bhasin v. Union of India, 2020 , the Court ruled that repetitive prohibitory orders are an abuse of power and cannot be used to suppress legitimate expression of opinion.
  - Every preventive restriction must be published publicly to enable judicial review and must pass the four-prong test of proportionality: legitimate aim, rational connection, necessity (least restrictive measure), and balancing of interests.
- Balancing Protest with Civic Mobility: In Amit Sahni v. Commissioner of Police (Shaheen Bagh Case), 2020 , the Court reaffirmed the fundamental right to peaceful protest while holding that public ways and spaces cannot be occupied indefinitely.
  - Demonstrations must take place in designated areas to balance the right to protest with the rights of commuters and the general public.
- Checks on Arbitrary Arrest and Preventive Detention: The Court routinely reiterated that police cannot casually arrest peaceful demonstrators when no cognizable offence punishable with more than seven years is committed, and any procedural lapse renders preventive custody an unconstitutional deprivation of personal liberty under Article 21.

Did you Know?

Gandhi’s 1922 Trial & Delhi Detentions

During his 1922 sedition trial before Judge C.N. Broomfield, Mahatma Gandhi articulated the philosophical foundation of non-violent civil disobedience:

- Right to Express Disaffection: "Affection cannot be manufactured or regulated by law." Citizens are free to express disaffection toward an authority or system, provided it does not incite or promote violence.
- Non-Violent Non-Cooperation: Non-violence requires deliberate, peaceful resistance and the "voluntary submission to the penalty" (courting arrest/detention) rather than turning to violent opposition.
- Constitutional & Judicial Evolution: Post-Independence, the Supreme Court translated Gandhi’s doctrine of peaceful dissent into fundamental rights under Article 19(1)(a) (free speech) and Article 19(1)(b) (peaceful assembly).

What Measures Can Strengthen the Right to Protest While Maintaining Public Order?

- End Blanket Prohibitions: Shift from blanket BNSS Section 163 orders to designating regulated, accessible protest zones, as directed in Mazdoor Kisan Shakti Sangathan (2018) .
- Proportionality as a Strict Check: Recommended applying the four-prong test (Anuradha Bhasin, 2020) restrictions must be the least intrusive measure to address an imminent, demonstrable threat.
- Graduated Force Continuum: Enforce the "irreducible minimum" force doctrine (Ramlila Maidan, 2012), banning indiscriminate dispersal and requiring documented escalation steps.
- Mandatory Body-Worn Cameras & ID: Equip frontline crowd-control personnel with operational body cameras and visible name tags (D.K. Basu mandate) to deter custodial abuses and unprovoked force.
- The "Facilitation" Principle: The United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime (UNODC) , UN Human Rights Committee's General Comment No. 37 , and Amnesty International guidelines emphasise that police should facilitate peaceful assemblies , protect protesters' rights, and use force only when necessary and proportionate.
  - They support the Principle of Differentiation , requiring authorities to distinguish between peaceful protesters and individuals engaging in violence.
  - Violent actions by a few should not justify mass dispersal, excessive force or detention of peaceful protesters.
  - The overall approach prioritises human rights, proportionality, accountability and protection of peaceful assembly .

Conclusion

The BNSS, 2023 must balance public order with fundamental rights. Restrictions should be proportionate, uphold Articles 14, 19 and 21, and protect peaceful assembly without undermining lawful governance.

Drishti Mains Question:

Preventive detention represents a constitutional tension between individual liberty and collective security. Critically examine.

Frequently Asked Questions

1. What is Section 163 of the BNSS?
It empowers Executive Magistrates to issue orders to prevent urgent threats to public order, safety and tranquillity , replacing Section 144 CrPC.

2. Which Fundamental Rights protect the Right to Protest?
The Right to Protest primarily flows from Article 19(1)(a) and Article 19(1)(b) , subject to reasonable restrictions under Articles 19(2) and 19(3).

3. What is preventive detention under Article 22?
Preventive detention allows the State to detain a person without trial to prevent acts prejudicial to national security or public order , subject to constitutional safeguards.

4. How does Article 21 protect persons against arbitrary detention?
Article 21 guarantees life and personal liberty , requiring deprivation of liberty to follow a fair, just and reasonable procedure .

5. What is the significance of the Doctrine of Proportionality?
It requires restrictions on Fundamental Rights to have a legitimate aim, rational connection, necessity and proper balancing of interests , ensuring that State action is not excessive.

Prime Minister Dhan-Dhaanya Krishi Yojana

Source: PIB

Why in News?

The Prime Minister Dhan-Dhaanya Krishi Yojana (PMDDKY) , launched on 11th October 2025 as a six-year initiative , recently completed its first year of implementation.

What are the Key Facts About PM Dhan-Dhaanya Krishi Yojana?

- About: The Prime Minister Dhan-Dhaanya Krishi Yojana (PMDDKY) aims to transform agriculture and allied activities in 100 Aspirational Agricultural Districts through focused, district-specific interventions.
- Need for the Scheme: It seeks to address challenges such as low agricultural productivity, inadequate irrigation, limited access to agricultural credit and insufficient post-harvest infrastructure.
- Launch and Duration: Approved by the Union Cabinet on 16th July 2025 and formally launched on 11th October 2025, the scheme will be implemented for six years, beginning from 2025–26 .
  - It draws inspiration from NITI Aayog's Aspirational Districts Programme , with a specific focus on agriculture and allied sectors.
- Key Objectives:
  - Enhance agricultural productivity and promote crop diversification and sustainable agricultural practices.
  - Augment post-harvest storage facilities at the panchayat and block levels.
  - Improve irrigation facilities and facilitate access to short-term and long-term agricultural credit.
- Identification of Districts: The 100 districts were selected based on three key indicators: low agricultural productivity, low cropping intensity and low agricultural credit disbursement .
  - The allocation of districts among States and Union Territories considered their share of net cropped area and operational holdings , with at least one district selected from each State.
- Convergence Approach: The scheme integrates 36 Central schemes across 11 Ministries and Departments , along with State schemes and private-sector partnerships.
  - The Department of Agriculture and Farmers Welfare (DA&FW) leads implementation in coordination with other Ministries/Departments, NITI Aayog , NABARD and States/UTs.

Administrative Structure

PMDDKY follows a three-tier implementation mechanism at the district, State and national levels.

- District Level: The District Dhan Dhaanya Krishi Yojana Samiti , headed by the District Collector/DM , prepares and implements the District Action Plan (DAP) .
- State Level: The State Dhan Dhaanya Krishi Yojana Samiti , headed by the Chief Secretary , reviews and monitors the District Action Plans.
- National Level: The National Executive Committee , headed by the Union Minister for Agriculture and Farmers Welfare , and the National Monitoring Committee , headed by the Secretary, DA&FW , oversee implementation at the national level.

District Action Plans

- Need-Based Planning: DAPs are prepared based on baseline and diagnostic analyses to identify local agricultural needs and determine appropriate interventions.
- Scheme Convergence: DAPs converge relevant Central and State schemes and specify outcome- based targets, annual milestones and scheme-linked interventions .

- Approval and Fund Flow: DAPs are sent to concerned State departments for incorporation into annual action plans, enabling necessary approvals and fund release.
- Performance Monitoring: Progress is assessed through 121 indicators across 36 schemes, comprising 74 output indicators and 47 outcome indicators .
- Dashboard-Based Ranking: District performance on output indicators is ranked monthly through the PM-DDKY dashboard .

Progress Under PMDDKY

- Dashboard Operationalisation: The PM-DDKY dashboard became operational in the last week of October 2025, with monthly rankings based on output indicators beginning in November 2025.
- District Action Plans: All 100 PMDDKY districts have prepared their DAPs, which are under implementation.
- Institutional Mechanism: Committees have been constituted at the national, State and district levels for regular review and monitoring.
- Data Reporting: All 100 districts submitted output-indicator data up to August 2026 and outcome-indicator data for FY 2025–26.
- Central Monitoring: Central Nodal Officers regularly review implementation and provide guidance to districts.
- CSR Participation: The Department of Public Enterprises has included the adoption of PMDDKY districts for Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) activities by Central Public Sector Enterprises (CPSEs) during FY 2026–27 and 2027–28.
- Overall Performance: The average score across the 100 districts increased from 18.85 in April 2026 to 46.89 in August 2026 , an improvement of 28.04 points .

PM-DDKY FPO Sangam

- About: The PM-DDKY Farmer Producer Organisation (FPO) Sangam, held in December 2025 , provided a platform for farmers and FPOs to exchange experiences and explore opportunities for improved productivity, market access and income enhancement.
- Participation: The event brought together over 72 FPOs from 15 States and 33 PMDDKY districts .
- Key Themes: Discussions covered natural farming, oilseeds, beekeeping, protected cultivation, micro-irrigation, institutional finance and digital agriculture.

Best Practices from PMDDKY Districts

- Local Processing and Market Access: In Gadchiroli, Maharashtra , an FPO with 800 farmer members established a rice processing unit and a 900 MT warehouse to promote local value addition and better price realisation.
- Smart Irrigation and Sustainable Farming: In Jaisalmer, Rajasthan , an FPO with 1,236 farmer members adopted Integrated Pest Management (IPM)-based cumin cultivation across 2,000 acres and solar-powered sprinkler irrigation across 500 acres, promoting efficient water use and improved farm productivity.

Conclusion

PMDDKY represents a district-centric, convergence-based and outcome-oriented approach to agricultural development. Its long-term success will depend on effective implementation, coordinated monitoring and translating improvements in agricultural infrastructure and productivity into higher and more sustainable farmer incomes .

US PERM Suspension & ‘Indentured Servants’ Row

Source: TH

India’s Ministry of External Affairs (MEA) sharply rebuked US characterization of foreign tech workers as "indentured servants," following the US Department of Labor’s (DoL) decision to freeze Program Electronic Review Management (PERM) applications for eight global tech majors, including five India-centric IT firms (TCS, Infosys, Wipro, HCL Technologies, and Cognizant).

- PERM Programme: Managed by the US DoL , PERM is the official electronic system for obtaining a Permanent Labor Certification - the mandatory first step for employers sponsoring foreign workers for Permanent Residency (Green Cards) under the EB-2 (Employment-Based 2 nd Preference: professionals with advanced degrees or exceptional ability) and EB-3 (Employment-Based 2 nd Preference: skilled workers, professionals with a bachelor's degree, and other workers) categories.
  - It requires a Labour Market Test proving that no qualified U.S. workers are available for the role and that hiring foreign nationals will not depress local wages.
- PERM vs. H-1B Visa: While the H-1B is a non-immigrant (temporary) work visa (valid for 3–6 years, where Indians hold ~70–72% share) that remains unaffected by the current freeze , PERM is an immigrant pathway toward permanent settlement.
- Historical Context of "Indentured Servitude" (Girmitiya System): Introduced by the British after the abolition of slavery in 1833 , the indentured labour system transported over 1.5 million Indians under penal 5-year contracts (Girmit) to plantations in Fiji, Mauritius, Trinidad & Tobago, Guyana, Suriname, South Africa, and Malaysia .
  - The MEA rejected comparing this colonial bondage to Indian STEM professionals , who are the highest-earning ethnic demographic in the US.
- Broader Strain in India–U.S. Bilateral Ties: While strategic cooperation under Quad , US-India COMPACT (Catalyzing Opportunities for Military Partnership, Accelerated Commerce & Technology) and iCET (Initiative on Critical and Emerging Technology) remains strong. Their economic and trade relations are facing fresh strain due to three main triggers:
  - Curbs on Indian Skilled Workers: US protectionist policies are restricting the cross-border movement of Indian professionals (known as Mode 4 under WTO's General Agreement on Trade in Services (GATS)) , which is a major strength of India's service economy.
  - High Visa Costs: The US recently imposed a steep USD 100,000 one-time fee on new H-1B visa applications, making it much more expensive to send Indian tech workers onsite.

The Indian Navy recently commissioned INS Mangrol (P82) , the third Mahe-class Anti-Submarine Warfare Shallow Water Craft (ASW-SWC) , at the Naval Dockyard, Mumbai, following the commissioning of INS Mahe (P80) in November 2025 and INS Malvan (P81) in July 2026 .

- Indigenous Construction: Designed and built by Cochin Shipyard Limited (CSL), Kochi , INS Mangrol has over 80% indigenous content , supporting Aatmanirbhar Bharat and indigenous warship construction.
- Primary Role: The vessel is designed for Anti-Submarine Warfare (ASW), underwater surveillance, Low-Intensity Maritime Operations (LIMO) and mine warfare-related tasks in coastal and shallow waters.
- Key Capabilities: INS Mangrol is equipped with Abhay hull-mounted sonar, lightweight torpedoes, an indigenous anti-submarine rocket launcher and the Mareech Advanced Torpedo Decoy System to detect, track and counter underwater threats.
- Propulsion: It is powered by three diesel engine-driven waterjet propulsion units , providing high manoeuvrability and rapid response in shallow and confined waters.
- Name and Legacy: It is named after the coastal town and fishing harbour of Mangrol in Junagadh district, Gujarat , and carries forward the legacy of the earlier INS Mangrol (M85) , a minesweeper that served until April 2004 .
- Strategic Significance: The vessel strengthens India's coastal defence, maritime domain awareness and anti-submarine warfare capabilities , particularly in shallow waters where larger warships face operational limitations. It enhances the protection of ports, harbours and coastal approaches in the Indian Ocean Region .
